

Lulsla Nightmare

I was assigned as a escort of a main joint of Assault Gunboats, whose primary objective was destroy the rebel Light Calamari Cruiser named Lulsla. Twelve imperial ships against a Cruiser, some rebel ships and wide zone full of mines. As Tau Flight Leader, I was assigned as Omega's flight group escort.

The four flight groups flew through at full engine. When we were locked by the mines, I ordered my flight group to attack all the mines near Omega flight group. All was right until Omega and Sigma began to attack Lulsla. That cruiser was weakened but not destroyed, and his turrets destroy the Sigma flight group and two Omega's gunboats. Tau and Nu flight groups were ok, and the primary mission was still incomplete. In that moment, I ordered my flight group to cover me, and launch all my concussion missiles to the Calamari Cruiser Lulsla. My flight group attack them while some X-Wing appeared. Nu flight group cover the whole operation but they suffered a lot of damage from the rest of the minefield. That was terrible. Only me and LT Sergeyli have no damage (although low shields). In that moment, LCM Dunta Polo, Nu flight group Leader, communicated with me and told me the secret mission. Any escape ship from the now almost destroyed Lulsla must be blown up and the Commander's ship must be disabled.

The last Omega ship launched his missiles against Lulsla. They impact directly in the motors, and in that moment, some ships were launched from the Cruiser. That was the signal. LCM Dunta Polo was assigned to follow the Commander's ship, and the rest of us must cover him and destroy all escaping ships. The remaining mines and the Y-Wings were a problem. Two Y-Wings launched some missiles against LCM Dunta Polo. Fortunately CPT Alpha Fox Trot locked them and destroyed them before hit Nu Leader. Meanwhile, the Commander's ship was disabled and the rest were destroyed by LT Sergeyli and me myself.

That was supposed to be an easy mission, but it was fatal for a lot of good pilots. At least the objectives were reached, and the whole zone was now empty of rebels and traitors.
For the Empire!!!